Question No. 2

Suggested Time: 21 Min. † Total Marks: 14

Mr. Asif, a businessman engaged in the trading of garments on medium scale, is maintaining two accounts with ABC Bank since 2010 as a normal customer. One account is maintained as individual business account and the other account is a salary account. Mr. Asif is also serving as a Senior Bureaucrat in Excise & Regulatory Department. The garment business of Mr. Asif is cash based with monthly turnover of approximately Rs. 40 million.

After a passage of time, the bank's Transaction Monitoring Department noticed that frequent walk-in customers were depositing cash in the business account of Mr. Asif. On conducting enquiry, the bank came to know that these customers were importers of foreign goods and subsequently deposited amount was either withdrawn through cheques or transferred online to foreign bank accounts. The cheque/ cash depositing staff of ABC Bank was ignoring these transactions, assuming that all these transactions belonged to his garments business. Due to these transactions, turnover of his business account showed a rapid increase from Rs. 3 million to Rs. 40 million.

KYC (know your customer) of Mr. Asif states that one account was maintained for garments business and the second account was for salary purpose, and, hence, both were marked as 'low risk'.

Required:

- (a) Describe any three (3) KYC requirements.
- (b) What are the compliances and customer due diligence (CDD) lapses related to maintaining the account by Mr. Asif?
- (c) Considering above scenario, what would you recommend to ABC Bank?

Salman & Co. is a Karachi-based company and deals in the sale of ready-made garments in the domestic market. Having captured the market in Pakistan and established its brand name, the company decided to enter into the global trade. As, the son of the company's owner, Mr. Iqbal, returned from abroad after taking management degree from a reputed UK university and expressed his willingness to take charge of the foreign trade business.

Using his [Mr. Iqbal] contacts in the foreign market, the company received its first export order for Rs.10 million for the supply of ready-made garments. He rightly opted for the route of irrevocable letter of credits (L/Cs) through a reputed bank. He assumes that all L/Cs are irrevocable under Uniform Customs and Practice for Documentary Credits (UCP). The L/C was established and it was advised through SMB Bank, Karachi. Having been delighted to get a L/C for his first export order, he sat for reviewing the conditions of the L/C with reference to the pro-forma invoice he sent to the buyer quoting the terms and conditions of the offer. The issuing bank will honour the payment against L/C once all the conditions are fulfilled by the buyer and seller.

Required:

- (a) How does letter of credits (L/Cs) work?
- (b) Are all L/Cs irrevocable or there are any kind of revocable L/C exist in Pakistan?
- (c) Keeping in view the above case, briefly explain the role of parties involved in L/C.
